

TAKE THE RUNWAY LESS TRAVELED WITH FRACTIONAL OWNERSHIP.

Especially in today's economy, more and more individuals and corporations are exploring options in private aviation. Executives who recognize time as their most precious resource find airline schedules simply too restrictive. The inconveniences of ticketing and security lines, connecting flights, schedule delays, etc., are at crisis levels. At the same time, private aircraft ownership can be enormously expensive. In addition to acquisition costs, the operation, maintenance, and insurance costs can be staggering.

A better solution and one of the most unique concepts in private aviation today is fractional ownership. This option provides many of the advantages of owning your own aircraft, but at a much lower price and with far fewer responsibilities. You will purchase the exceptional value of time, flexibility, and consistency of service coupled with the safety and security that you would expect with your own aircraft. By sharing ownership with others, costs to the individual are dramatically reduced and the aircraft is utilized more efficiently. Through the management services of an experienced team, share owners are afforded the availability of an aircraft when and where they need it.

West Coast Charters has been a leader in the private aviation industry for over 21 years. Their fractional share program in King Air B200s and 350s promises acquisition costs that are affordable as well as management and operational costs that are predictable. The innovative program is designed to provide services primarily in the western United States, Canada and Mexico where owners do not pay for repositioning within the Primary Service Area (1,000 nm of the Orange County, California base).

Imagine a business trip where it is not necessary for you to leave the night before in order to make a morning meeting. You determine your own itinerary with access to some 12,000 airports not serviced by the commercial airlines. The aircraft is ready to leave when you appear and, if you are running late, the aircraft waits for you. You are traveling with your colleagues, your family, or your friends so you can hold private meetings or private conversations without concern. Your luggage travels with you and your ground transportation is waiting for you upon arrival. After you've triumphed at your meeting (because you were well rested, well prepared, and operating at peak efficiency), you head back to the airport to jump onto your waiting airplane and be whisked home to sleep in your own bed. Success!
